PRITZKER SCHOOL OF LAW

law.northwestern.edu

Northwestern Pritzker Law is a longstanding leader in innovative legal education and aims to prepare students for success in a rapidly changing legal profession. Technology, globalization, and the need for progress on social and racial justice are transforming our society. COVID-19 has only accelerated those changes and exacerbated inequalities. Our cutting-edge courses and academic programs, professional development opportunities, and individualized career support help our graduates launch their careers and make an impact.

We are committed to Northwestern Pritzker Law being a welcoming and inclusive environment for every member of our community, and to actively combating bias and inequality at the Law School, Northwestern, and in our broader society. We are building upon our existing initiatives to develop additional concrete action grounded in active listening.

At Northwestern Pritzker Law, you will have all the resources of one of the top research institutions in the world with small classes taught by a faculty of leading legal scholars and practitioners. You can choose to focus your studies in one of our many areas of strength, including appellate law, business enterprise, civil litigation and dispute resolution, environmental law, international law, law and social policy, and technology, innovation and entrepreneurship. We offer numerous joint degree programs, including the JD-MBA, JD-PhD, JD-LLM in Taxation, and JD-LLM in International Human Rights, and a two-year JD program designed for internationally educated attorneys. Our Innovation Lab, Law and Technology Initiative, Center for Practice Engagement, San Francisco Immersion Program, and interdisciplinary NUvention course provide our students with cross-cutting skills.

Our students benefit from an extensive array of practice and research opportunities. The nationally-recognized Bluhm Legal Clinic's 13 centers allow our students to advance justice and learn through experience. Our students have worked on U.S. Supreme Court cases and have honed their advocacy skills through national and international moot court and trial competitions, including winning the 2020-2021 Saul Lefkowitz Moot Court

Competition. Our location in downtown Chicago is an ideal setting for students to access law firms, the courts, large corporations, government agencies, and local non-profits. Through our Senior Research program, students spend a semester or year conducting intensive research alongside a faculty mentor, often culminating in a co-authored, published article.

You will launch your career with the support of an extensive alumni network – more than 17,000 strong all over the globe. Our Career Strategy Center and mentoring programs provide our students and graduates with personalized assistance. Northwestern Pritzker Law also offers unparalleled opportunities for you to prepare for both public and private practice in today's global legal market. Our International Programs Office facilitates participation in our dynamic study abroad and international dual-degree programs, and our International Team Project courses provide opportunities to conduct research and field studies abroad and gain firsthand experience in legal and business environments outside the United States.

And when you need a break from studying, you can unwind by taking a walk by Lake Michigan, exploring Chicago's unparalleled cultural offerings (including the Museum of Contemporary Art only a few steps away), cheering for the Northwestern Wildcats or any of Chicago's professional sports teams, visiting the city's more than 600 public parks, or dining at the restaurants that have put Chicago at the forefront of this country's gourmet food scene.

I invite you to explore our programs further on our website or in person through a visit. We look forward to welcoming you to Northwestern Pritzker Law in the heart of downtown Chicago.

Hari M. Osofsky

Inclusion and Engagement

Northwestern Pritzker Law is deeply committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive law school environment. The Office of Inclusion & Engagement takes a proactive and innovative approach to diversity, inclusion, and engagement, and strives to create a community where all students, staff, and faculty feel supported and valued. Throughout the year, the Office of Inclusion & Engagement supports activities that promote, examine, and celebrate diversity. At Northwestern Pritzker Law, we strive to maintain an intellectually rigorous environment in which diverse viewpoints are shared, respected, and examined.

In addition to providing support and guidance to address the unique needs of historically under-represented and marginalized groups, the Inclusion & Engagement team works to develop programming and initiatives that build the cross-cultural awareness of the Law School community and create a legal learning community accessible to all.

Student Organizations

During your first year at Northwestern Pritzker Law, you will focus on building a solid foundation in legal reasoning, analysis, and writing, as well as a thorough understanding of the structures and policies of the law.

Our first-year curriculum consists of 24 credits of required classes.

Teamwork and communication skills are developed in classes such as Communication and Legal Reasoning, a required year-long course in which students collaborate on analytical exercises and group projects. As part of this class, you will participate in the Arlyn Miner First-Year Moot Court, which provides first-year students the opportunity to prepare a written brief and argue the case against fellow students before an appellate court composed of alumni and faculty.

Required Courses

- Civil Procedure
- Communication and Legal Reasoning I and II
- Constitutional Law
- Contracts
- Criminal Law
- Property
- Torts

The Kellogg Partnership

In the past, law students have had the opportunity to take certain core Kellogg School of Management courses, such as Accounting for Decision-Making and Business Strategy, taught by full-time Kellogg professors. A varying number of these courses have been offered each academic year, and law students have received full course credit toward their law degree when taking them. Subject to course bidding procedures and course availability, law students may enroll in as many of these courses as they wish.

In our JD-MBA program, the first three-year program of its kind, students earn a JD from Northwestern Pritzker Law and an MBA from Kellogg. Students split their time between the Law School's downtown Chicago campus and the Kellogg campus in Evanston, and spend a summer in an internship in law or business. With more than 70 students, ours is also the largest JD-MBA program.

The semester-long San Francisco immersion program, at the University's West Coast campus, enables Law and Kellogg students to take courses from both schools while also pursuing an externship with a startup or tech company in the Bay area. Tesla and eBay are among the high-profile companies that have hosted our students.

“The San Francisco Immersion Program changed the way I think about my career. A lot of people in law school go in with the idea that they’re going to work at a firm forever, but this program got me thinking outside that box.”

—Mason Willis (JD '20)

Upperclass Electives Open to First-Year Students

During the second semester of your first year, you will have the opportunity to take two upperclass electives that may form the basis of additional study in subsequent years. These courses may include the following:

Concentrations

Northwestern Pritzker Law offers a number of concentrations for students who are interested in focusing their studies in a specific area of the law.

Appellate Law: The Appellate Law concentration offers comprehensive training in the theory and practice of appellate law through our federal appellate clinic, Supreme Court clinic, and relevant coursework.

Business Enterprise: The Business Enterprise concentration provides a strong background in business-related law and allows individuals to create their own business-related curriculum.

Civil Litigation and Dispute Resolution: The Civil Litigation and Dispute Resolution concentration is designed for students who desire a strong background in litigation and trial advocacy.

Environmental Law: The Environmental Law concentration provides students with a strong foundation in environmental law and policy. In addition to coursework and research, students participate in interdisciplinary projects at Northwestern University as well as practical externship and clinical offerings at environmental organizations across the country.

International Law: The International Law concentration is designed for students with a particular interest in public international law, international business law, or comparative law.

Law and Social Policy: The Law and Social Policy concentration focuses on how law shapes society and is informed by the knowledge and techniques of the social sciences. Within this concentration there are two tracks: a policy analysis track and a public interest track.

Technology, Innovation, and Entrepreneurship: The Technology, Innovation, and Entrepreneurship concentration exposes students to the role of technology in the modern economy and the issues that drive the innovation process. Courses address innovation regulation and policy, legal practice technology, and entrepreneurship, culminating with an experiential course in which students put their knowledge and skills they have learned into practice.

Law, Business, and Technology

Emerging technologies are changing the way legal services are delivered to clients, and lawyers are increasingly called upon to serve clients in the scientific and technology fields. These changes mean that today's lawyers need additional fluencies. We prepare our students to serve their future tech clients as well as to lead the technological evolution in the legal marketplace. The Law School offers a comprehensive, integrated, and innovative curriculum that connects the study of law to the STEM disciplines—science, technology, engineering, and math—to provide opportunities for our students to develop the multidisciplinary skills they will need in the technologically driven global economy. This curriculum includes:

- The law of technology: Northwestern Pritzker Law offers a strong foundation and deepened understanding of rising practice areas such as privacy, cybersecurity, and cryptocurrencies.
- The technology of law: Northwestern Pritzker Law provides students a greater comprehension of the technology platforms being used in legal services, such as Lex Machina, LegalMation, Casetext Compose, and Documate.
- Tech fluency: Northwestern Pritzker Law provides interested students with technology skills, such as coding and software development, that set them apart from other Law School graduates.

ALUMNI FOCUS

Jesse Chang (JD-MBA '16)
and Professor Esther
Barron (JD '95)

Chang is the co-founder MDAR Technologies, Inc., which develops next generation 3D vision systems that enable machines such as self-driving cars to see in difficult environmental conditions. At the outset of the COVID-19 pandemic, he founded My Mask Movement, a non-profit organization making mass personalized 3D printed respirators available to frontline healthcare workers. In 2021, he founded m^3, a social impact startup on a mission to make fit inclusive using 3D tech. At Northwestern Pritzker Law, Chang worked with Professor Barron as a student in the Entrepreneurship Law course and the Entrepreneurship Law Clinic, and on a Senior Research Project. These studies informed the creation of both companies, and his non-profit.

Student Journals

Northwestern Pritzker Law students publish six journals featuring the work of leading researchers. Two of these journals, the Northwestern University Law Review and the Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology, boast a legacy of over 100 years of groundbreaking scholarship.

Second- and third-year law students participating on journals have the opportunity to select, edit, and write cutting-edge scholarship; to pursue leadership opportunities by serving on a journal editorial team; and to collaborate with other members in advancing the journal's goals.

In addition to publishing scholarship, our journals also gather leading scholars for frequent symposia on significant developments in the law.

- Northwestern University Law Review (founded 1906)
- Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology (founded 1910)
- Journal of International Law and Business (founded 1979)
- Northwestern Journal of Technology and Intellectual Property (founded 2003)
- Journal of Human Rights (founded 2003)
- Journal of Law and Social Policy (founded 2006)

ALUMNI FOCUS

Matthew Heins (JD '15)

Associate, Williams & Connolly

As part of his Senior Research project, Heins co-authored a paper with Professor Martin H. Redish entitled "Premodern Constitutionalism," which was published in the May 2016 issue of the William & Mary Law Review.

Senior Research Program

The Owen L. Coon/James A. Rahl Senior Research Program gives third-year students an opportunity to work in close collaboration with faculty on questions of doctrine and policy. Students can earn up to twelve credit hours for their project. Each year, over forty students work one-on-one with faculty on topics ranging from "Rethinking the Privileges and Immunities Clause" to "Cryptocurrencies: Behind the Speculative Bubble."

Professor Martin H. Redish

"Senior research was, without question, the most academically rigorous and intellectually fulfilling experience I have ever had. It was the culmination of everything I learned in law school (actually, come to think of it, in my twenty-plus years as a student). Throughout the process, I grew immensely as a researcher, writer, and thinker. Professor Redish pushed me all year, challenging me to read more critically, write more clearly, argue more forcefully, and develop my own authorial voice." —Matthew Heins (JD '15)

PUTTING THE LAW INTO CONTEXT

We are always considering the needs of today's legal marketplace and evolving our curriculum to ensure our students are prepared to be leaders in a dynamically changing profession. Our curricular incubator, the Center for Practice Engagement and Innovation, leads the way with these efforts, leveraging actionable intelligence from the leading practitioners to develop programs and courses.

Experiential learning is one fundamental way Northwestern Pritzker Law trains students to become effective, ethical lawyers. Through the Bluhm Legal Clinic, externships, and simulation-based courses, students tackle the legal problems of real clients leveraging the theoretical knowledge they have acquired in the classroom.

Bluhm Legal Clinic

The Bluhm Legal Clinic is widely recognized as one of the most comprehensive and effective clinical programs in the country. Through Northwestern Pritzker Law's clinical legal education program, second- and third-year students gain direct experience representing clients and fine-tuning their skills as advocates. Students also work with clinical faculty and staff to challenge the fairness of legal institutions and to propose solutions for reform.

Typically, 90 percent of students from each graduating class participate in Bluhm Legal Clinic programs during their time at the Law School, working side-by-side with nationally recognized scholars and practitioners from diverse backgrounds and perspectives.

Our students serve hundreds of clients annually, from teenagers tangled up in the juvenile legal system to members of international justice tribunals. As students gain unparalleled real-world experience, they also work to dramatically improve the lives of those they serve.

The Bluhm Legal Clinic houses more than 20 clinics in 13 centers:

- Appellate Advocacy Center
- Bartlit Center for Trial Advocacy
- Center for Criminal Defense
- Center for Externships
- Center for International Human Rights
- Center on Negotiation and Mediation
- Center on Wrongful Convictions
- Children and Family Justice Center
- Civil Litigation Center
- Complex Civil Litigation and Investor Protection Center
- Donald Pritzker Entrepreneurship Law Center
- Environmental Advocacy Center
- MacArthur Justice Center

Children and Family Justice Center student Reginald Guy (JD '16), together with Professors Carolyn Frazier (JD '02) and Shobha Mahadev (JD '99), celebrate with client G.R. and his grandmother. G.R. was released from prison following a resentencing hearing held pursuant to the Supreme Court's decision in Miller v. Alabama, which banned mandatory life-without-parole sentences for juveniles.

Civil rights attorney Andrew Stroth (JD '99) moderates a discussion on the intersection between social justice and community action with Father Michael Pflieger, civil rights leader and senior pastor at Saint Sabina Community Church; Chicago native and NBA player Jabari Parker; former Chicago Police Department Chief Fred Waller; and veteran news anchor Robin Robinson, as part of the 2018 Access to Social Justice Symposium.

Entrepreneurship in Action

The Donald Pritzker Entrepreneurship Law Center (DPELC) was one of the first legal clinics in the United States to provide intensive, hands-on training for students who want to be transactional lawyers or founders of start-up companies.

Under the supervision of clinical faculty, DPELC students work together to represent new ventures, established businesses, social entrepreneurs, and nonprofit organizations. Client projects range from entity selection and formation, to intellectual property protection, to drafting founders' agreements and customer contracts. Since its founding in 1998, the DPELC has served close to 1,000 clients.

In the Innovation Lab course, students are immersed in the innovation process. Student teams, which include both law and computer science students, explore a problem related to the legal profession, understand the stakeholders' needs, brainstorm, prototype, and test ideas, and iterate through the development of a technology-based solution.

Students in all degree programs can participate in NUvention, a University-wide interdisciplinary course where they learn to create a viable business plan for a product or service of their own creation.

The DPELC also engages with the broader entrepreneurship community through partnerships with incubators including 1871 and Techstars Chicago, an annual conference, a speaker series, and numerous workshops. Through these initiatives, students begin to think like entrepreneurs, employing different problem-solving methods and learning new ways to evaluate risk.

ALUMNI FOCUS

Kieren Patel (JD-MBA '16)

Patel is co-founder and CEO of Opticent Health, which designs and manufactures optical medical devices. He is also head of product and marketing at Quantum-Si, the world's first next-generation protein sequencing platform. Before coming to Northwestern, Patel earned a Ph.D. in Molecular and Cell Biology and served as a scientific advisor in the Palo Alto office of Wilson, Sonsini, Goodrich, and Rosati. In 2015, Opticent won the Grand Prize and the Life Sciences/Medical Track first prize at the Northwestern University Venture Challenge, earning $45,000 in startup capital, and was a finalist at Chicago Innovation.

Professors Esther Barron and Steve Reed work with student entrepreneurs at The Garage, Northwestern University's home for student entrepreneurs, a cross-disciplinary space created to nurture entrepreneurship and innovation.

(from top left): Emma Clouse, Charles Isaacs, Kristin Hendriksen, Danielle Berkowsky, Frances Harvey, Shane Henson, Paul Jones, and Jamie O'Connor are members of the Class of 2020 who secured public interest fellowships. They will work at organizations including Chicago Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, Uptown People's Law Center, Legal Aid Chicago, Reprieve US, Illinois Justice Project, and Prairie State Legal Services.

Public Interest

The Public Interest Center at Northwestern Pritzker Law provides strategic leadership of key public interest activities on campus and promotes a strong public interest culture – one that encourages all students to develop a public service ethic. Among the Center's features are financial support for students doing public interest work during and after law school; career counseling and programming; and a wide range of pro bono and public service opportunities. The Center also works closely with faculty involved in the law school's many public interest course offerings, helping to ensure that students gain a public interest ethic both inside and outside the classroom.

The Law School provides financial support for students interested in public service both during school and after graduation. These include the Summer Public Interest Funding Guarantee, which at $8,000 is the most generous in the nation, a strong Loan Repayment Assistance (LRAP) program, and the Public Interest Post-Graduate Fellowship Program.

Moot Court and Trial Teams

Moot Court and trial teams are an important part of legal training at Northwestern Pritzker Law. They prepare students for and allow them to participate in appellate arguments. Working under faculty supervision, students prepare briefs and present oral arguments in competitions with schools across the nation and around the world.

- Arlyn Miner First-Year Moot Court Program
- Julius H. Miner Moot Court Competition
- Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Team
- Bartlit Center National Trial Team
- National Trial Team
- Willem C. Vis International Commercial Arbitration

Global Opportunities

Students have many opportunities to prepare for both public and private practice in today's global legal market. These include study abroad options with 11 different international exchange partners. Study abroad is facilitated by the International Programs Office, International Team Projects, and the International Law concentration.

International Team Project (ITP) is a popular comparative law course, where students learn about the role of United States law, legal institutions, as well as political, economic and cultural systems in comparison to a foreign country. Students work in teams, along with a faculty advisor, to develop a comprehensive semester-long curriculum, culminating in an international field experience. Students then work together to prepare a paper of publishable quality detailing their research and findings. Over 125 students participate in ITP each year and ITP research has been conducted in over 30 countries.

Access to Health, an interdisciplinary health and human rights project, brings students and faculty from the Law School, the Kellogg School of Management, and the Feinberg School of Medicine together to work with communities in the developing world on projects that promote improved health outcomes.

Faculty are involved in projects around the world as well. Reforming the evidence code of Tanzania and developing clinical legal training in Ethiopia are two examples—and in all of these undertakings students are active participants. These types of projects allow students to gain insights into different legal systems and offer incomparable experiential learning opportunities, while at the same time serving the highest ideals of the profession.

ITP Ireland student leaders (from left) Cassandra Abernathy (JD '17), A.J. Singletary (JD-MBA '16), Claire Brennan (JD '16), and Kirsten Moran (JD '17) visited the Cliffs of Moher in County Clare, Ireland.

“ITP Ireland offered a class of 25 students, under the guidance of Professor Alyson Carrel, the experience of completing in-depth research projects comparing law between the United States and Ireland. My group focused on same-sex marriage, studying how Ireland, which passed same-sex marriage nationwide via popular vote, compares to the United States, which passed same-sex marriage nationwide via the courts. I will look back on ITP as a true highlight of my law school experience, as we developed solid friendships with fellow students while also flexing our academic muscles.”

–A. J. Singletary (JD-MBA '16)

Students have opportunities to supplement classroom learning with research abroad. During spring break in 2016, Professor Emily Kadens and eight of her English Legal History students traveled to London to conduct primary source research in legal archives. In this photograph, Christine Fiedler (JD '18) researches a late sixteenth century case from the Court of Star Chamber at the National Archives in London.

“Our group researched employment law in Spain. We met with several Labor and Social Security Inspectors at the Ministry of Labor in both Madrid and Barcelona, a representative from the Spanish Data Protection Agency, and employment lawyers—from Baker & McKenzie in Barcelona and Pérez-Llorca in Madrid.” –Agnieszka Kawecki (JD '16)

LIFE AFTER LAW SCHOOL

The Northwestern Pritzker Law community extends well beyond our campus and the city of Chicago. Over 16,000 alumni across more than 90 countries are working in countless firms, corporations, nonprofits, and other sectors; together they constitute an invaluable network that will be with you throughout your career.

Career Planning

Your career planning begins in the Career Strategy Center where career counselors provide students with the tools and strategies needed to conduct successful job searches and manage multi-job careers over their lifetime.

Each year, hundreds of employers from around the country visit Northwestern Pritzker Law to recruit our students, and our graduates feed back into all the major markets. We are one of only three law schools that typically sends approximately 15% or more of its graduates to both coasts as well as the Midwest.

Our successful approach to career strategy is clearly evident in our employment track record and is further validated through external recognition. For each of the past ten years, the National Law Journal has listed Northwestern among the top ten “Go-To” law schools, based on the percentage of graduates securing positions within the largest U.S. law firms. In 2021, Northwestern Pritzker Law ranked number two on this list.

Lifelong Support

The Career Strategy Center remains a partner throughout your career. We recognize that the legal profession is changing – people no longer leave law school and stay at one firm for their entire career. They move around – into government, into business, into tech.

We are committed to supporting the professional and educational development of our alumni for the duration of their careers. A dedicated alumni career advisor provides personalized career counseling, hosts professional development webinars, creates peer groups focused around particular career milestones, and facilitates networking and mentorship opportunities.

16,000+ alumni

90+ countries

Financial Assistance

Additionally, the Law School's Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP) is designed to help recent graduates achieve their individual career objectives. Most law schools have a Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP), but ours is different in an important way: it provides extra money in the first five years after graduation to help keep unpaid interest at bay. While other schools have LRAP programs that cover some or all of a graduate's IBR payment, we provide a percentage of graduate's IBR payment as well as a percentage of their unpaid interest for the first 5 years in the program. The College Cost Reduction and Access Act of 2007 (CCRAA) allows graduates to use Income Based Repayment (IBR) to lower monthly payments on federal student loans. However, one drawback of IBR is that the low payments often do not cover the interest due on the loan, much less the principal. Our LRAP helps graduates make their IBR payments and also pay down some of the unpaid interest during the first five years. This provision benefits graduates whose changing life circumstances cause them to pursue private sector employment before full forgiveness is achieved.

Northwestern University does not discriminate or permit discrimination by any member of its community against any individual on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, parental status, marital status, age, disability, citizenship status, veteran status, genetic information, reproductive health decision making, or any other classification protected by law in matters of admissions, employment, housing, or services or in the educational programs or activities it operates. Harassment, whether verbal, physical, or visual, that is based on any of these characteristics is a form of discrimination. Further prohibited by law is discrimination against any employee and/or job applicant who chooses to inquire about, discuss, or disclose their own compensation or the compensation of another employee or applicant.

Northwestern University complies with federal and state laws that prohibit discrimination based on the protected categories listed above, including Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. Title IX requires educational institutions, such as Northwestern, to prohibit discrimination based on sex (including sexual harassment) in the University's educational programs and activities, including in matters of employment and admissions. In addition, Northwestern provides reasonable accommodations to qualified applicants, students, and employees with disabilities and to individuals who are pregnant.

Any alleged violations of this policy or questions with respect to nondiscrimination or reasonable accommodations should be directed to Northwestern's Office of Equity, 1800 Sherman Avenue, Suite 4-500, Evanston, Illinois 60208, 847-467-6165, equity@northwestern.edu.

Questions specific to sex discrimination (including sexual misconduct and sexual harassment) should be directed to Northwestern's Title IX Coordinator in the Office of Equity, 1800 Sherman Avenue, Suite 4-500, Evanston, Illinois 60208, 847-467-6165, TitleIXCoordinator@northwestern.edu.

A person may also file a complaint with the Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights regarding an alleged violation of Title IX by visiting www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/complaintintro.html or calling 800-421-3481. Inquiries about the application of Title IX to Northwestern may be referred to Northwestern's Title IX Coordinator, the United States Department of Education's Assistant Secretary for Civil Rights, or both.
