Just like Uber depends on a network of transportation infrastructure of cars, fuel and roads, a safe, reliable and low-cost energy system depends on a network of pipes, wires and generation infrastructure. Yet, developing and maintaining the energy infrastructure system is expensive and often controversial. This panel will offer views from those companies that invest in, develop and operate the nation’s energy infrastructure and will talk about needs, challenges, benefits and the need for safe and reliable energy infrastructure in the MARC region.

Energy infrastructure development often has regional and even national impacts, but the need, siting, routing and cost recovery decisions are being at the state level. How to pick the “right” infrastructure? How to decide the energy infrastructure needs? What processes to use? This panel of state decision-makers will discuss how they answer these questions, balance the competing interests maintain, replace and construct large-scale energy infrastructure while integrating alternative, smaller-scale advancing technologies and achieve the public’s interest?

- Moderator: Tony Clark, Senior Advisor, Wilkinson Barker, Knauer, LLP; Former FERC Commissioner
